Dear Shivam,

I am writing to extend my heartfelt congratulations to you for your outstanding participation in the 65th Annual Science and Engineering Fair in the Embedded Systems category. Your dedication, creativity, and hard work have truly shone through in the incredible projects you have presented. You represented your school, your community and your family well.

The Science and Engineering Fair is a testament to your curiosity and passion for discovery, and it is inspiring to see the innovative ideas and solutions that you have developed. Whether you were exploring the depths of outer space, unraveling the mysteries of the natural world, or tackling real-world problems through engineering, your contributions have not only showcased your talents but also demonstrated the potential for positive change through science and technology. Your willingness to engage with the scientific process, to ask questions, to experiment, and to learn is commendable and will serve you well in your future endeavors, both academic and professional.

As you reflect on your experiences at the Science and Engineering Fair, I encourage you to continue nurturing your curiosity and exploring the world around you. Science and engineering are not just subjects to be studied in school; they are powerful tools that can shape the future and make a difference in the world. I cannot wait to see what the future holds for you. Remember, once a Mustang, always a Mustang!

Once again, congratulations to you on a job well done. I am incredibly proud of you, and I look forward to seeing the incredible contributions you will make to the world in the years to come.

Sincerely

Thad J. Roher
